

Foreign Bank Accounts 101

U.S. persons are required to file FBAR tax returns (Report of Foreign Bank and Financial Accounts) annually if they have a financial interest in or signature authority over financial accounts, including bank, securities or other types of financial accounts in a foreign country, if the aggregate value of those financial accounts exceeds $10,000 at any time during the calendar year. They are also required to report income from the offshore accounts and assets on their timely filed US Income tax returns.

Penalties Include Fines & Prison

Non-compliance with the FBAR filing requirements include significant civil and criminal penalties. Depending on if the violation is “willful” or “non-willful”, the civil penalties range from up to $10,000 per violation to $100,000 or 50% of the amount in the account at the time of the violation. Criminal penalties for violating the FBAR requirements while also violating certain other laws can range up to a $500,000 fine or 10 years imprisonment, and both can be imposed with the civil penalties.

It Isn't Too Late To Avoid Fines & Prosecution

If you were required to file FBAR tax returns in the past and have not yet done so, or had undisclosed income from offshore accounts or assets, contact a tax attorney experienced in dealing directly with the IRS to file the 2011 Offshore Voluntary Disclosure Initiative (OVDI). Similar to the Offshore Disclosure Initiative in 2009, the 2011 OVDI offers a reduced penalty for not filing the FBAR tax returns on time and for not reporting all or part of the foreign income. It also offers amnesty against prosecution.

Act Now

The filing deadline for the 2011 Offshore Voluntary Disclosure Initiative (OVDI) is August 31, 2011. This could very well be your last chance to become compliant with U.S. tax laws. Taxpayers can avoid prosecution and much more severe penalties and fees by taking advantage of the OVDI. Combating international tax evasion is a top priority for the IRS. As the IRS Commissioner Douglas H. Shulman noted, "For those hiding cash or assets offshore, the time to come in is now. The risk of being caught will only increase."

We Can Help

StopIRSDebt.com offers tax relief services for both state and federal tax debt including criminal tax representation, FBAR compliance & disclosure, and complete services around OVDI filings. Our legal team handles negotiations with the Revenue Agent once the case is accepted into the Offshore Voluntary Disclosure Initiative for the lowest penalty possible, as well as negotiations with the IRS on the assessed offshore penalty.

We have years of experience handling the preparation of most tax resolution matters, such as Installment Agreements, Partial Pay Installment Agreements, Offers in Compromise, Filing Tax Returns, and much more.
